Stress patterns

You should know

Long vowels: A, U, Y, any accented vowel, vowel/consonant combination or diphthong

Short vowels: E, I, O

Number of syllables in word	Where the stress falls
2	On the first syllable (EL-rond, AR-wen)
3	On the penultimate (second to last) syllable (i-SIL-dur, peri-ANN-ath) or on the third to last syllable (gal-AD-ri-el)

Penultimate syllable stress

This is used when this syllable contains a long vowel. We also use this pattern if the syllable is a vowel (any vowel) followed by two or more consonants.

Attested examples:

Isildur (i-SIL-dur). Although the I in SIL is a short vowel, it is followed by the consonants LD, and so the stress falls on SIL.

Third to last syllable stress (antepenultimate):

This is used when the penultimate syllable contains a short vowel or any other vowel followed by just one consonant.

Attested examples:

Denethor (DE-ne-thor). NE is the penultimate syllable, but it contains the short vowel E, and so the stress falls back onto DE.

Boromir (BO-ro-mir). RO is the penultimate syllable, but it contains the short vowel O, and so again, the stress falls back onto BO instead.

Galadriel (ga-LAD-ri-el). RI is the penultimate syllable, but although it is followed by the vowel E, they are not a diphthong as they are two separate words so the I in RI remains short - thus the stress must switch to the syllable before it.

How to use this book

Greetings

I greet you

Len/Gin suilon pol./inf.

Len/Gin suilannon pol./inf.

You may see two options separated by a slash.

The first option – Len suilon – is the polite, or formal version, that you would use with a stranger or someone in a position of authority. The second option – Gin suilon – is the informal version that you would use with a friend or someone you know well.

You may see

Thank you

Le/Gi hannon pol./inf.

Alternative versions of words or phrases are listed in boxes marked You may see. These are alternative Néo-Sindarin versions used by other Sindarin linguists and scholars, and they exist because Tolkien's notes have been interpreted differently by different people.

Please note that no interpretation is more correct than another, they are simply different viewpoints. Where there are different ways of saying the same thing, choose the version that you prefer.

Where is/are...?

...the horses

...the guesthouse

Mas...?

i rych

i hennas

When you see phrases marked like this, any of the words listed below can be put into the space marked by the ellipsis in the initial sentence, e.g. Mas i rych? Mas i hennas?

I come from...

We come from...

Telin o(d)...

Telim o(d)...

When you see phrases like this, the letter in brackets is only added if the word following it begins with a vowel, e.g. Telin od Imladris, I come from Imladris.

Essential

Yes, I will	Athon
Yes, we will	Athof
No	Ū
No (with a shake of the head)	Baw
Please!	Fasto!
Thank you	Len/Gin hannon pol./inf.
Forgive me	Goheno nin
You're welcome	Te i 'ell nîn
Do you speak my language?	Carfol/Carfog i lam nîn? pol./inf.

You should know

There is no one word for 'yes' in Sindarin. Athon can only be used when the answer is 'Yes I will'. Ways of getting round this include repeating the question, e.g.

Q. Dha bass ennas? Is there bread there?

A. Dha bass ennas. There is bread there.

Body language

Elves don't just speak with their mouths, they are an expressive people who also have what is known commonly as the Language of the Hands.

One hand palm upwards	Gesture of recipient, or asking for something.
Both hands palm upwards	You are at the service/command of whom you are talking to.
One hand palm forwards	Gesture of prohibition, i.e. Halt! Silence! This would never be used in greeting.
One hand palm backwards	Greetings, welcome.
One hand edge forwards	Casual greeting in passing, no further speech desired.
Both arms wide, below shoulder level, palms upward
I come in peace (I have no weapon in either hand).

You should know

Extending the fingers for any of these gestures increases the significance of the gesture

Age

What years do you have? Man îñ sevil/sevig? pol./inf.

What years have you seen? Man îñ cenninil?/cenninig? pol./inf.

There is no direct way of asking an Elf how old they are, so these are some suggestions. For the numbers to fill in the gap in the sentence, see the Numbers section.

Sevin ... îñ

I have ... years

Cennin ... îñ

I have seen ... years

Romance

You should know

To the Elves sex equalled marriage, so whether you are an Elf with another Elf or an Elf's lover from the race of Man you are their spouse. As Tolkien puts it "It was the act of bodily union that achieved marriage" (Laws and Customs of the Eldar)

Lover	Seron/Melethor
Lover (female)	Melethril

Numbers

Unlike all other adjectives in Sindarin which follow the noun they are modifying, numbers precede the noun e.g. Mîn pen = One person.

Cardinal numbers

One	Mîn
Two	Tâd
Three	Neledh
Four	Canad
Five	Leben
Six	Eneg
Seven	Odog
Eight	Tolodh
Nine	Neder
Ten	Pae
Eleven	Minib
Twelve	Ýneg
Twenty	Taphaen
Thirty	Nelphaen
Forty	Cambaen
Fifty	Lephaen
Sixty	Enephaen
Seventy	Odophaen
Eighty	Tolophaen
Ninety	Nederphaen
100	Haran
144	Host
1000	Meneg

Tolkien never wrote down any of the numbers 13-19 so we cannot say with any certainty how they could be formed. For larger numbers I suggest this approach:

Taphaen a vîn	Twenty and one (21)
Nelphaen a neledh	Thirty and three (33)
Odophaen a eneg	Seventy and six (76)
Tâd menig	Two thousands (2000)

Festivals and special days

A festival, feast day	Mereth
Festivals, feast days	Merith
Birthday	Oronnad
A wedding	Best
First day of the year	Mininor
Middle day of the year	Enedhinor

Last day of the year	Penninor
Birth of the flowers*	Nost-na-Lothion
Yule	Durufuin
Christmas	Rhistonnad

*This day was marked in Gondolin to celebrate the passing of winter.

You should know

Based on a Quenya inscription, this is a likely way of wishing someone a Merry Christmas in the Elvish fashion –

May you find a blessed 'Amanor' No hirel amanor aer where the word 'Amanor' refers to the return of the sun after the Winter solstice.

Birthdays

You should know

Elves celebrated conception rather than the birth, however their pregnancies lasted for a year. This means that your Oronnad is both the day you were conceived and the day you were born.

Happy birthday!	Oronnad 'ell!
Present/presents	Ant/aint
Blow out the candles!	Hwesto i ligym!
I am wrapping your presents	Gwaedon i aint gîn
You have unwrapped all your presents!	Dadhwaedannenog i iant bain gîn!

Days of the week

You should know

The Elven day lasted from sunset to sunset, and their weeks lasted for six days. The Men of Gondor's day lasted from sunrise to sunrise, with a week of seven days (like our own).

Dawn ('first twilight')	Minuial
Sunset ('second twilight')	Aduial
First day of the week	Orgilion
Second day of the week	Oranor
Third day of the week	Orithil
Fourth day of the week	Orgaladh*
Fifth day of the week	Ormenel
Sixth day of the week	Orbelain
Seventh day of the week	Oraearon

*Older Elves would call this day Orgaladhad

Months and seasons

You should know

In Elvish reckoning the first day of the year was on 21st March, with the last day of the year falling on 20th March.

The Elven year began in spring, and ran for six seasons from spring to spring. Laer and Rhîw are 72 days long, and the other four seasons are 54 days long. The mortal year starts in midwinter (as ours does), and instead of six seasons, they split the year into twelve months. Ten months had 30 days, and the other two had 31.

Elven reckoning

Spring (22 nd March - 14 th May)	Ethuil
Summer (15 th May - 25 th July)	Laer
Autumn (26 th July - 17 th September)	Iavas
Middle days (18 th – 20 th September)	Enedhoer
Fading (21 st September - 13 th November)	Firith
Winter (14 th November - 24 th January)	Rhîw

Stirring (25th January - 19th March) Echuir

Mortal reckoning

February	Nínui
March	Gwaeron
April	Gwirith
May	Lothron
June	Nóruí
July	Cerveth
August	Urui
September	Ivanneth
October	Narbeleth
November	Hithui
December	Girithron

Years

The Elves dealt in both Valian years (where one 'year' is 144 mortal years) and 'sun rounds', which are equivalent to one of our years of 365 days.

Year (365 days)	Idhrinn, îñ
Valian Year (144 years)	Ennin
Millennium	Andrann
